

Claude.AI prompt

Your task is to analyze how the responses from four different Language Models (LLMs) contributed to a final combined response. You will be given the individual responses from each LLM and the final combined response. Your goal is to identify which parts of each LLM's response made it into the final response.

Here are the responses from the four LLMs:

<LLM1_Response>
{{LLM1_RESPONSE}}
</LLM1_Response>
<LLM2_Response>
{{LLM2_RESPONSE}}
</LLM2_Response>
<LLM3_Response>
{{LLM3_RESPONSE}}
</LLM3_Response>
<LLM4_Response>
{{LLM4_RESPONSE}}
</LLM4_Response>
```

And here is the final combined response:

<Final_Response>
{{FINAL_RESPONSE}}
</Final_Response>

To complete this task, follow these steps:

1. Carefully read through each LLM's response and the final combined response.
2. For each LLM, identify any phrases, sentences, or ideas that appear to have been incorporated into the final response. Look for exact matches, paraphrases, or conceptual similarities.
3. In your analysis, consider not just word-for-word matches, but also how ideas or information from each LLM might have influenced the final response.
4. If you notice that certain parts of the final response don't seem to come from any of the individual LLM responses, make note of this as well.
5. Present your findings in a clear, organized manner. Use the following format for your response:

<Analysis>

LLM1 Contributions:

- [List the parts of LLM1's response that made it to the final response]

LLM2 Contributions:

- [List the parts of LLM2's response that made it to the final response]

LLM3 Contributions:

- [List the parts of LLM3's response that made it to the final response]

LLM4 Contributions:

- [List the parts of LLM4's response that made it to the final response]

Unique Elements in Final Response:

- [List any parts of the final response that don't seem to come directly from any of the LLM responses]

</Analysis>

6. If you're unsure about the origin of a particular part of the final response, you may indicate this uncertainty in your analysis.

Remember, your goal is to provide a clear and accurate breakdown of how each LLM's response contributed to the final combined response. Be thorough in your analysis and present your findings in a well-organized manner.

Response:

Output of Prompts from LLMs and their parts going into the final response.

<Analysis>

LLM1 Contributions:

- The introductory sentence mentioning Karma Yoga as a concept central to several Hindu scriptures, including the Bhagavad Gita, Vyadha Gita, Yoga Vasistha, and Tripura Rahasya.
- The idea that Karma Yoga in the Bhagavad Gita involves performing one's duty without attachment to the results.
- The mention of the Vyadha Gita as a section of the Bhagavata Purana telling the story of a hunter.
- The description of Karma Yoga in Yoga Vasistha as being tied to understanding the true nature of reality (Brahman) and the self (Atman).

- The mention of Tripura Rahasya as a philosophical text discussing the nature of the universe and the self.

LLM2 Contributions:

- The definition of Karma Yoga as the path of selfless action and service performed without attachment to the results, leading to spiritual growth and self-realization.
- The idea that Karma Yoga in the Bhagavad Gita is introduced by Lord Krishna to Arjuna as a way to attain peace and self-realization.
- The mention of Karma Yoga in Yoga Vasistham (Vasistha) as the path of action where one performs duties without attachment and with understanding of the transient nature of the world.

LLM3 Contributions:

- The definition of Karma Yoga as a path of self-liberation through selfless action, detachment, and the cultivation of inner wisdom.
- The structure of presenting Karma Yoga in each text separately.
- The description of Karma Yoga in the Bhagavad Gita as a conversation between Lord Krishna and Prince Arjuna.
- The explanation of Vyadha Gita as a discourse between a hunter (Vyadha) and sage Narada.
- The description of Yoga Vasistha as a discourse between sage Vasistha and Prince Rama.
- The mention of Tripura Rahasya as a mystical text delving into esoteric aspects of Hinduism.
- The idea that Karma Yoga in Tripura Rahasya is one of three primary paths to liberation.

LLM4 Contributions:

- The emphasis on performing duties without attachment to results across all texts.
- The idea that Karma Yoga leads to inner peace and spiritual growth.

Unique Elements in Final Response:

- The summary paragraph at the end, which synthesizes the key points about Karma Yoga from all the texts.
- The specific phrasing and organization of information, which seems to be a unique combination of elements from different LLM responses.
